Comments: I am 82 years old, and there has been animal testing as long as I can remember.

The world has exploded technologically; futuristic things we never believed possible are now part of every day life. Yet, torturing animals for mascara continues to this day.

That the practice of testing on animals has not been replaced with something newer and beter is unthinkable.

Why does this hideous practice continue to flourish? So that schools and laboratories can get government grant money?

Let us keep up with scientific and technological advances and outlaw all animal testing for good.
